Denver Awake.

the washout.

Messrs, Hendrie & Bolthoff, of this city, the leading mining machinery firm in the west, yesterday shipped via Pu-eblo four cars of machinery, as follows: One car of pipe to Tombstone, Arizona: two cars mining machinery to Nutt station. New Mexico; one car mining machinery to Las Vegas for the White Oaks mining region, New Mexico. The Tribune publishes this to show the importance of our trade with New Mexico and Arizona, and that we should do all in our power to encourage the trade. Our wholesale grocers also have a large trade there, and if the Denver & Ric Grande was only extended from El Moro to Las Vegas, or from Espinola to Santa Fe or Albuquerque, we could con-trol that entire trade.—Denver Tribune

It is about time that the people of Denver were awake to the importance of building a line into New Mexico. Now that the Tribunc sees the importance of building a line for through traffic, it should still further examine the question, and will find that the best way to reach the rich mining districts of New Mexico is by way of El Moro, Las Vegas and the Pecos valley. This line would tap a large number of rich districts, as the road would skirt the foot-hills along the main range, in which are valuable mineral deposits. Such a line would pass near the White Oaks, Nogal and White Mountain districts. Of course the line would not be convenient to many of the other rich districts of the Territory, but it presents more arguments in favor of its construction than any other route. The mines and coal fields of Colfax county, that would be adjacent to a line built south from the Denver & Rio Grande railway at El Moro, would of themselves justify the construction of the road. In addition to this, the road would have as good a local business as any line in the west. To reach Arizona, Denver merchants should build a line down the Pecos to a connection with the Texas & Pacific railway, that is soon to be built through Arizona. If report be true, that the Tribune is championing the "Little Giant" narrow-gauge, the above item from that paper may be regarded as a feeler. But, neighbor, this isn't the right course to pursue. You must do your work quickly, else some other road will be constructing a line over our Las Vegas route. The opportunity is a good one, the route is practicable, and other railroad managers than Gen. Palmer are looking over the ground.

Scientific Expedition.

Prof. Stevenson, of the Smithsonian Institute, passed through this city on Sunday en route to Fort Wingate. He was accompanied by his wife and several of his geological and surveying party. About forty of his party are now on their way overland from Utah with their instruments and outfit used last season in Nevada and California. The Professor's work for the present ed, so that the work of Prof. Stevenson's party can be used by the coast ists and special scientists are included in the party, and they will make a thorough study of that section of the coun- ninety-one per cent, lambs this season. try and explore the western part of

White Oaks Mail.

A gentleman of this city who has been n correspondence with a Texas stage man relative to carrying the mail from this city to White Oaks, has received a very handsome proposal that we hope Postmaster General James will see fit to accept. The gentleman in question has had many contracts for carrying U. S. mail, both by steamer and by stage. He is now successfully operating two stage lines in Texas that form a part of a big star route. He is a man of wealth, and enjoys the best sort of a reputation as an enterprising and sterling man of business. He announces that he is ready to bid $19,000 per year for carrying the mail between Las Vegas and White Oaks, making six trips a week each way by four horse coaches. From what he learns of the routes to the Oaks, he prefers to run his stages from this city to that flourishing camp. Considering that the government now pays $24,000 per annum for carrying the mail between Socorro and White Oaks, the Texas man stands a good chance of securing the contract, especially as his old star route contracts are being renewed and others given him by Postmaster-General James, which is proof positive that he has faithfully complied with all the terms of his contracts in the past. It remains now for the citizens of Las Vegas to send in a monster petition in favor of the Las Vegas route, and we feel confident that it will have the desired effect. We can safely count on its securing the endorsement of General Cameron, the postal inspector, as that gentleman has trav- train. eled over the different routes and must be convinced, as all who have applied that test, that the route from Las Vegas is by far the best,
